RENENUE AGENT'S CONTENTION SUSTAINED

Supreme Court Sustains Contention Of State Revenue Agent As To Insufficiency of Election Petition. Wind Knocked Out Of Initiative Amendment Inserted In Constitution.

JACKSON, MISS., Oct. 24.— The Supreme Court yesterday rendered an opinion in the case of Stokes V. Robertson, revenue agent, vs. the Secretary of State relative to the inadequacy of the petition filed with the Secretary of State asking that the matter of fixing the salary of the Revenue Agent at $5,000 and thereby taking that official off a commission basis, which sustains the contention of the Revenue Agent that the petition did not meet the legal requirements, and further, the decision of the court knocked into a cocked hat the Initiative amendment to the State Constitution which was voted on in 1914 and inserted by the legislature at its next sitting, and it also put to sleep, at least for the present, the amendment to be submitted at the coming November election which sought to amend the Mortmain clause of the Constitution. The court's decision, too, rendered invalid the floating school fund of over $1,000,000 which was passed under the authority of the supposed Initiative amendment. The court held the Initiative amendment invalid because it failed to receive a majority of all the votes cast, and it took this action notwithstanding a former Supreme Court, some of whom are now off the bench, had declared the Initiative duly carried.

The court's decision is causing the state school authorities much apprehension as the sessions of 1922-23 have been fixed on the basis of the special appropriation. Just what will be done or can be done is at this time a puzzling question. It is understood that the matter of calling an extra session of the Legislature will be brighter and better days are just in the dawning for this God-favored section—this section where the seasons are so even and where the grasses grow almost ten months in the year and where the soil sings of good crops, abundant harvest and well filled barns and bulging purses.

Grenada had a tremendous drawing card for her exposition this fall. The polo games, featuring some of the best known players and sportsmen of the middle west, most young chaps who can count their wealth in millions, took everyone heart and soul. The grandstand was packed, the fences were lined and every point of vantage was made uses of. The sport held the crowd, entertained them and pleased them. Probably not one in a hundred had seen polo played before. They liked it thoroughly. And Polo is what is going to make Grenada's fair this fall a record-breaker.

There is a fine agricultural show, with as many counties competing as were after honors at the Tr-State Fair in Memphis: there is a rattling good poultry show; the club boys and girls of North Mississippi are out in force in all the club events; the women have splendid displays of all sorts of work, ranging from kitchen to the finest needle and art work. There were numerous herds of good cattle and pens filled with long-back,

THE FAIR ACCLAIMED GREAT SUCCESS

People Come for Hundreds of Miles and From Distant States.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE GREAT SHOW.

The Polo Games Great Drawing Cards. Much Credit Due Mr. John Borden. Attendance Quadruples Anything Ever Before In History Of A Fair Held at Grenada.. Farm And Live Stock Exhibits Eye-openers To All Classes. Great Interest In All Counties Of District.

Monday, October 23, 1922, was an epoch-making day in the history of Grenada, and of this section of North Mississippi. On that day the North Mssissippi Fair opened. The weather was ideal. It had rained the night before just enough to settle well the dust and to make everybody more interested in attending.

The people were here not only from the counties composing the fair district but from different parts of the State and from Illinois and as far away as California. It was a day that could but make the heart of every true Grenadian pleased; it was a day that could but make the minds of the thoughtful citizen speculate as to the future and ponder over the past as to what the "new order" would develop. It was a day that showed that the men and the women of all classes and of every business believed that new paths needed to be marked out and that out of the Fair and kindred things thoroughout Mississippi, would come the inauguration of business factors and practices that would aid in making the farmer come more nearly into his own and that would serve to show each and all how nearly there is an inter-dependence among every class and calling within the State.

The live stock, the farm products, the poultry exhibits, the beautiful horses, the work of the corn club boys, the work of the girls from the different counties in the home economics department and the exhibits in the women's department—these all showed up well and compared most favorably and creditably with what was showed at the Tri-State Fair and the State Fair at Jackson. Truly the first day made every one have a sort of proud feeling and furnished food to the well grounded belief that

To The People of Grenada

There will be over five hundred Baptists in Grenada for three days—November 14-16.

These christians are coming from every part of the state of Mississippi, therefore we must take care of them in real old time (not style) way. For the last five years the Baptist state conventions, in their meetings have not been expecting the folks or town to give them anything but the beds and breakfast, therefore they will only expect the same treatment here that other towns have been giving.

Listen to this people of Grenada, unless you do better than you are starting out we will never care for these people—what then?

We must take at least two persons to the bed and two beds to the room unless the room is very small.

Remember please these men are coming here for work, and are not expecting you to sit up and entertain them. Give them their morning meal, and you will not see them until night.

Do we want folks some of the best of the land to go back to every part of the State of Mississippi, and say old Grenada could not and did not care for us? This will be the case unless we put at least four to the room.

Grenada has never failed—shall we now?

W. E. FARR.

KING'S DAUGHTERS DAY

The first Wednesday in November has been set aside to be permanently observed as King's Daughters Day in Mississippi. The day will be fittingly observed in Grenada on Wednesday, Nov. 1. An inspirational program will be rendered at the meeting which will be held in the Directors Room of Grenada Bank at 3:00 o'clock P. M., just before the meeting of the Woman's Club. All ladies are urged to attend whether they are members of the King's Daughters or not.

CARD OF THANKS.

If it were possible for the tender words and loving sympathy to assuage one's sorrow, ours would be banished. We are deeply appreciative of everything that was done for our dear daughter before her death and for the kind ministration of friends after she passed away. May God richly bless one and all.

Very sincerely, W. B. Rook and family.

WHAT GOVERNMENT PLANS IN ROADS

Federal Government Has Mapped Out Road Program Which Covers Every State in Union And Will Mean Through Highways In Every State. The Millions That Are Laid Aside.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 12—Fifteen to twenty years of building good roads lie ahead of the United States. Under the program which the country has adopted there will be built, during that time, 180,000 miles of improved highways which will constitute the Federal-aid highway system and an equal or greater mileage of State and local roads. When the great job is done, the transportation facilities of the country will far exceed those of any other nation, past or present, in the world. The highways of the ancient Romans, whose fame has come down through the centuries will pale by comparison.

Details of this vast road building program are to be placed before the Highway Education Board at its conference in Washington October 26 to 28, inclusive, by State Highway Engineers and officials of the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, to whom has been entrusted the work of planning and supervising the construction of Federal-aid highways. The plan will be presented to enable the Board to proceed authoritatively with its work of devising aids for schools and colleges to which road-builders of the country are turning for competent highway engineers.

Officials of the bureau place the aggregate cost of the Federal-aid program alone at about $3,000,000,000 spread over the twenty-year period. They base this estimate on an average of $17,000 per mile. The average cost, in turn, takes into consideration all classes of improved roadways from the cheapest to the most expensive types. Approximately one-third of the proposed system, or 60,000 miles of improved highways, already are either built or building.

The program is a new one. Up to comparatively recent years, road-building in the United States had been conducted without special regard to a national system. Highways had been constructed where needed without considering whether they would link up in the most effective manner with the whole network of roads to be spread over the nation. Engineers had sought more to meet immediate and local demands than the broader requirements of the States and nation.

The present Federal-ad road-building program, officials of the bureau state, will contemplate the construction of only such roads at fit into the national program and contribute to the national system. At the same time the roads will be so selected as to serve the most important local requirments. With marked modifications, the system adopted in building the railways of the country will be borne in mind in the construction of the country's new highways. There will be main lines of highway communcation between centers and thousands of miles of feeder roads, reaching back into the more sparsely settled regions and into rich agricultural sections, to tap areas whose population and products will flow over the new system.

New roads will be planned and built—thousands of miles of them—where they will fit in most advantageously with the entire program. The bureau is continuing its research work into most efficient methods of road-building, including the haracter and wearing power of materials, resisting qualities of varyng subsoils, etc., and has amassed a considerable store of valuable information all of which will be available for the highway engineer of to-morrow, whom the Board is seeking to have educated in practical and modern methods.

How to Build Up or Tear Down a Town

The attitude you maintain toward your home town—its business men and its institutions—reflected in the success or the failure of the same. The success and happiness of every citizen in any community lies in the interest he takes in that community and the good work he can do to assist in its upbuilding. Everything you do to help in the advancement of your own community you do just that much toward your own personal success. No man can live and prosper unto himself alone, for you are interdependent, and realizing this, as good citizens, you should unite and pull together for the common good, and doing this, you will prosper as community and as individuals. No town can stand still. It must either go forward or decline, and it is up to you which it will be. Some towns hustle and grow—that is, the people hustle and the town grows. That they get the habit of boosting until every citizen becomes a booster, and pretty soon its reputation is made and it becomes known far wide as a good town, while others lapse into a state of comma that soon classes them among the dead ones. Nothing hurts a town more than knocking. If you cannot say anything good, don't say nothing, and above all, don't knock. If you are not a booster, become one. The success of the retail merchant depends on the patronage of his home people. The home jobber is largely dependent on the patronage of his home retailer, and the banks are dependent likewise on the success of all, while the success and happiness of the people depends on the success of the business man. One of the greatest injuries you can do your home town or community is to order your goods from mail order houses or patronize outside concerns. Every dime sent away from your community to a mail order house is removed from local circulation. Its principlal and interest both gone, whereas, money spent at home come back to you again.

THE OFFICIAL ORGAN OF GRENADA COUNTY

Mr. Grenada Citizen: Saturday, October 28, an election is to be held to test you whether you are willing to add two more mills to your tax burdens.

Wil Hight, that splendid man and able editor of the Winston County Journal at Louisville, was among these who attended the Fair from East Mississippi. Hight has rendered the people of his section an inestimable service with this excellent paper and deserves all the good things that have come to him, and more. He stands for clean morals, integrity of conduct in public affairs and clean politics. We are especially glad that he came and saw what the Fair is.

SENTINEL PRINTING 1,000 EXTRA COPIES

The sentinel is printing 1,000 extra copies this week. This will carry the news about the Fair to the remote corners and we hope will aid in promoting a sentiment helpful to the entire section.

THE ELECTION SATURDAY TO INCREASE CITY TAXES.

The voters of Grenada are reminded that on Saturday (tomorrow) there is to be an election held in Grenada to see whether or not the City Council shall be authorized to levy 2 mills more of taxes.

Of course those who feel that they are not paying enough taxes should vote for the proposition. Of course those who feel that the town of Grenada, in its affairs, should not be required to do as most people are doing, spend less than they did last year and for a few years back, should vote for the tax increase. Of course those who believe that debt and high taxes go hand-in-hand with good business and prosperity, should vote for the tax increase.

But those who know that they are receiving less wages than they did a year or two ago and who feel that conditions demand economy in the conduct of the city's business, will vote against the increase.

THE BUNGLING OF LAW-MAKERS.

The embarassment which comes to the school authorities of Mississippi by virtue of the decision Monday of the Supreme Court shows some more of the blundering of legislators. It is also another instance of the hysteria which has obtained more or less throughout the country for the past dozen years to proceed regardless of constitutions.

Whatever steps that may be taken in regard to the so-called "floating" school fund, nothing should be done that is not absolutely warranted by law. It is better that the schools do without the funds for a few months than that the law and regularity should be trampled under foot.

NOT TO VOTE ON SALARY OF STATE REVENUE AGENT

The decision of the State Supreme Court handed down on Monday which, in plain terms, holds that the petition of those seeking to substitute a salary of $5,000 for the commissions now paid the State Revenue Agent for his detection of those who evade the proper payment of taxes, was insufficient. It knocked into a cocked hat the contention adverse to back-tax collecting which has been sky-larking around over Mississippi ever since the Revenue Agent filed the suit against certain fire insurance companies, many of whose home offices were in London, some in Berlin and others in Petrograd and other foreign cities, for violating the anti-trust laws of the State.

That the petition was indiscriminately signed, but repeats what everybody knows about almost all petitions. The law requires every signature to be in the person's own handwriting. Petitions are generally recognized to be poor ways to get at what a people wish. It was also asserted that the petition carried the names of hundreds who are not qualified electors. About that we do not know, but we do know that that is the case with most petitions.

There were some people in the years ago who knew just about as much as the best know today and out of the minds of some of those in the past came the idea of a revenue agent to hunt up and penalize those who dodged taxes legally required. The same idea is followed out in requiring the sheriff to add damages if taxes are not paid by a certain date. Our judgment is that the idea is a correct one and that the man who evades the payment of taxes lawfully required should suffer the penalty. We know some pretty well-to-do, miserly minded people who would be ready to cut the pigeon wing if they could just know that there were no official authorities to go behind taxes listed.

There was a contingent in the Legislature at its last session obsessed with the idea, it seemed, that "something must be done to limit the emoluments of the office of revenue agent." Regardless of what came up, some one, it appeared, was ready to move, "I desire to add to that Mr. Speaker, a motion to abolish the office of State Revenue Agent," which in effect meant, "I desire to offer an inducement to those who will to hide out some of their property or taxable stuff from the tax collector while other people come up to the tax-paying licklog."

We thought then that some very brainy men were doing an awfully foolish thing. We think so yet. And in making this statement we are in no way biased by any leanings to the present Revenue Agent. We are dealing with the office and not the man who happens to hold the office.

Regardless of the amount of commission received by the Revenue Agent, we wager that we can hold on the point of a needle all who have paid back-taxes which the law did not demand.

Incidentally the fight the Revenue Agent put up on the petition, caused the State Supreme Court to kill the Initiative amendment which was illegally incorporated into the State Constitution, and, as we understand, the court's decision gives the knockout drops to the proposed modification of the Mortmain clause of the Constitution which is to be on the ticket to be voted November 7. Figuratively, there have been three birds killed with one stone, a fact upon which we congratulate Stokes Roberson.

We voted against the Initiative amendment and we purposed voting against proposed change in the Mortmain clause in the Constitution. Good.

Some of our good friends, it has seemed to us, have done the foolish thing of combatting the Revenue Agent, because, forsooth, a jackass Executive jumped into the arena and sought to make capital for himself out of what the Revenue Agent had done. Yet the same good men know that the Executive never had any originality except that which has been reputed to humanity since the days of Father Adam.

TAXES MUST COME DOWN.

Says The Womans Voters:

"A few years ago there was a great cry raised to organize a State Tax Board. We were told if this board was organized it would be possible to reduce the state tax levy about one hundred per cent. Instead of such a reduction the state taxes have been raised from one hundred to six hundred per cent.

"During the inflation period brought on by the war our Legislature made some wild appropriations, which the people stood for because money was cheap and they did not feel the burdens of heavy taxation. Now, since the deflation has brought about a scarcity of money, the people seriously feel the need of the money which they have to pay out for taxation. In order to pay their taxes many have to deny themselves the things of life essential to their comfort and happiness.

"We are confronted with the statement that there is no way to reduce taxes. Our answer is that to continue the present rate of taxation will bankrupt the people. The time has come when a reconstruction must take place, so if we turn our minds to the question of reducing taxes, we will undoubtedly find a way. Members of our Legislature say there is no place to begin without crippling some institution. We reply that if the minds of men are incapable of finding a place to begin, then put a few brainy women in the Legislature and we predict they will find a way. Women are naturally more economical than men. Women are naturally more systematic and decidedly more exacting than men.

"Under the present wasteful policy of our state government many of our institutions maintain a lobby at Jackson during the entire session of the Legislature for the purpose of getting every cent they can obtain, regardless of whether they need it or not. There have been needless offices created and the burdens on people increased, without reason other than to furnish a soft place for political friends.

"We assert without fear of contradiction that there is not a single state institution in operation in Mississippi today whose expenses could not be cut by an efficient management unhampered by political pie hunters. We assert boldly that there are many institutions operating in Mississippi whose expenditures could be reduced from ten to twenty thousand dollars a year without hindering or affecting their efficiency to the public. Any casual observer can point out the political coat-tail riders who are drawing salaries in return for useless service in our state institutions. They are kept on the payroll as political satelites of the state administration. This has become so patent that it amounts to nothing more than a species of graft.

"The national government employed a competent man to investigate the different departments of the Federal government and to make recommendations to Congress as to where expenses could be cut down. The result was that the United States lost without injury to its departments of government hundreds of millions of dollars of expense. The same thing can be done in a smaller way in this state. The question arises though, are the people going to say, 'What is everybody's business is nobody's business?' Will the people allow themselves to continue to be imposed upon and the very necessities of life taken from them and their children, in order to enrich a few fat job holders of a state administration? We believe that they will take the matter in hand and begin the reduction of taxes in a substantial way.

"We do not mean by this policy to cripple any institution in its efficiency to the public or to withhold honest payment to any officer or employer to whom just compensation is due for honest service.

"We do, however, most earnestly contend that all needless expense be eliminated.

"In our imagination we can see a brainy, sensible woman taking the department reports of one of the great institutions of state and studying it as a legislator, then when the time comes to vote for an appropriation for the maintenance of that institution, pointing out with child-like simplicity where the pruning knife can be applied without njury.

"Men do not have time for such detailed legislative action, therefore the body will be greatly improved by a few women entering our legislative halls."

The above is taken from the last week's issue of The Woman Voter published at Clarksdale, and the official organ of the women of Mississippi.

We are indeed glad to welcome to the standard of rational business as applied to the collection and expenditure of public funds, the good women of Mississippi. And boys, take it from us, when the women say apply the pruning knife, they mean what they say without any side stepping.

We have little patience with the declaration, "Can't cut appropriations without crippling public institutions". Well it is better to cripple a few institutions than to load on the taxpayers a burden they cannot carry while at the same time mortgaging away the future of our children.

The test should be applied to every candidate for the Legislature next year as to how he stands on expenditures. Let us have the "light brigade" for more moderate taxes.

THE AFTER-WAR ASPECTS.

"Everybody talks about Christian philosophy but few are willing to apply it both to themselves and to their neighbors.

"But in the realm of human morals outside of the teachings of Christ, the progress of discovery of how men can get along together is slow.

"Thousands of young men are passing through Memphis today enroute to New Orleans where they will recount to one and other the incidents of a colossal war. That war brought a small temporary success, but as we get further away from it we see that it was a colossal failure and curse."

The above is taken from Mr. Mooney's big editorial in the Commercial Appeal of Sunday, October 15, the caption of which, was, "More Discoveries Needed."

Like nearly everything this great editor wries,especially for his Sunday editions, there is a great sermon in the editorial.

Mr. Mooney means that the war has proven to be a "failure and curse" not because our cause was not just and righteous, but because of the spirit of greed and selfishness which men have exhibited since peace was concluded.

The trouble with too many of us was that we allowed the thrills of war and the halo of battle to make us expect too much as a result of the conflict.

Any reasoning mind, any mind that thought backward while moving forward, it always seemed to us, was bound to conclude that, judged by past wars, the very dogs of hell would be turned loose.

The devil uses every agency to poison the minds of men and to batter down the walls of truth, and when the tide appears to be against hia, he turns to war, for experience has taught him that greed and avarice, the love of money, hold almost undisputed sway when war is being waged, and when men are adjusting themselves after war.

The profiteer, the man whose alpha and omega is money, is what has played havoc in the characters and in the hopes of men since August 1, 1914, and since the day the Armistice was signed.

But let it be remembered that "every tongue shall confess and every knee shall bow before the name of Jesus." Ex-Vice President Marshall has said that statesmen have failed, that all leaders have proven impotent and that there is but one leader capable of leading the world to the mountain tops of security and that leader, is the living Christ, the Son of God.

WAS THE COUPLE DRESSED?

The unfrocked minister who married an unfrocked couple in a bathing pool now asks to be reinstated. He has proved himself irremediably unfit to lead any flock; but should he be again entrusted with one, many curious sheep from other herds will increase his fold. Bold sensation, when once it is undressed, will never die—but only be suppressed. — Biloxi Herald.

THE COON AND O'PUSSUM DINNER

In Honor Of Glenwild Owner And His Guests.

One of the many delightful experiences of the week in connection with the Fair was the coon and o'possum dinner given at Spring Lake Club on Monday at 6 o'clock in honor of Mr. John Borden, owner of Glenwild and president of the Fair Association, and his guests, by the Grenada Bank in which a number of the citizens of the community assisted.

To the minds of the guests from Illinois, the matter of having coon and "possum" provided for a meal was no doubt something unique. These animals are among the many things which Dixie has that is denied the northern brother and sister. With the "coon and possum" is very naturally associated the negro and his "coon dog."

Some forty odd Grenada citizens and sundry specially invited guests from nearby towns were there to do honor to the distinguished visitors. Hundreds of Japanese lanterns and huge bonfires added greatly to the charm of the surroundings at the club and served to give the scene a still further touch of "coon hunting" and "possum hunting."

The guests, headed by Mr. Borden and wife, received in the dance hall of the club. Mr. J. T. Thomas, stood at the head of the line and presented those seeking to do honor to the distinguished visitors. After this very pleasant feature was concluded, the way was led to the grounds below where under the light of bonfires and lanterns a most elegantly prepared dinner in which "coon and possum" were the distinguishing parts of the menu, was served. Everybody enjoyed the evening. The dinner appealed to the appetites and tastes of all, and while perhaps some of the special guests touched with some misgivings the more important parts of the menu, yet they got an experience and the occasion served to bind Illinois and Mississippi more closely together.

From Spring Lake, nearly all went to the Fair grounds and spent several more hours most pleasantly.

New Election Commissioners For Grenada County.

Messrs. V. A. Bridgers, O. L. Kimbrough, Sr. and Dr. W. P. Ferguson received commissions from Jackson Wednesday to serve as Election Commissioners for Grenada County for the next two years. Inman, also a member of the former board, died, and Mr. A. T. McElwrath did not desire a reappointment.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dubard's Friends Felicitate With Them.

"What is more beautiful than a life well spent?" is a question that could but revolve itself over and over in the minds of those who were present on Tuesday evening, October 24, 1922, when Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Dubard, of Grenada, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

It is an honor, a blessing and a distinction that comes to but few couples in life to pass along down the years for one half century together, and to be able to gather their children and other loved ones about them in gracious remembrance of what a kind and loving Providence has done for them; it is a joy that fills every thoughtful heart and soul with the profoundest thoughts of reverence and love for Him "who rules above and guides below."

The lovely, hospitable, commodious yet simple and trustful home of this excellent couple was very tastefully and appropriately decorated for this occasion.

The friends were met at the door by Messrs. T. H. Meek and G. R. Granberry and were then led to the parlor by Miss Mary Roane and Mrs. Willie Mai Dubard, a niece, where the bride and groom of fifty years ago with their two sons and three daughters together with their four sonsinlaw and two sisters of the bride stood and received the congratulations and hearty felicitations of their friends. It was indeed a pretty picture. It was a scene that must have pleased the angels. It was a scene that can but give hope and inspiration to those who are treading life's tempestuous pathway because it shows what right living, integrity of aim and oneness of purpose will do for two people whose hearts beat as one and whose aim is to glorify God in living a life every day that squares with the best that man can interpret the will of his Creator.. Besides the bride and the groom, those in the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hinds, of Tupelo, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Rubard and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dubard, of Dubard, Judge and Mrs. C. L. Lomax, of Greenwood, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Anderson, Mr. Ward Allen, a soninlaw whose wife was unable to be present. Mrs. Helen Hanks, Mrs. Richard Nason, sisters of the bride.

After being presented to the bridal party, the guests were conducted to the dining room where refreshments of delicious cake and ice cream were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Dubard were married at what was then known as Elliott mission, just a little south of Holcomb, Mrs. Dubard being a daughter of Mr. Robert C. Beard. The two were reared not many miles apart, and hence had known each other from childhood.

When all friends had come and the hour for the reception was about concluded, the Rev. W. W. Woollard, pastor of the Methodist church faced the receiving line to say a few words and ask the benedictions of heaven, but before he could begin to speak, Mr. Dubard said he desired to make a brief statement. He referred most beautifully and tenderly to the days of their courtship, of the time they had carved their names on a beech tree on the creek nearby and to sundry other things that lovers only understand. He praised the day that his wife became his bride and lovingly stated that she had grown prettier with the years. He expressed his gratitude for his children and said that he was pleased that his sonsinlaw were good and true men and thanked them for not ever having given him the least worry or annoyance. The sixteen grandchildren which had come to bless the homes of his children and theirs were not overlooked in his tender expressions of love.

When Mr. Dubard had concluded, Mrs. Helen Hanks, one of his wife's sisters who had made her home with them after her father's death and since her very childhood, spoke a few words of appreciation of how fatherly and tender he had been to her and her sisters and stated that there had never been the least cloud to mar the serenity of the home and of his watchfulness and care for her and her sisters.

Following Mrs. Hanks, Mr. Woollard spoke briefly of the life and character of the bride and groom and what their lives had meant to society, to the Methodist church and to home and concluded with a most beautiful prayer.

As these good people face the setting of their sun—and everybody faces the same sunset—they may dwell in that security of thought which comes of duty well done, of days well spent. They have kept the faith and may rest assured that they will leave a rich legacy to the world which will grow in splendor as the years roll by. They have made the world to see new stars; darkened pathways have been opened to the light of the noonday radiance by them. They have builded altars upon which the fires of love and righteousness shall burn in brilliancy. They have helped to show the things of God to others. They have labored while it is yet day and shown that they knew that God expects each and every one of His creatures to do his level best with the surroundings and the conditions which confront him.

May their sun linger in the western sky, and when its setting does come, this paper feels that the Angels from God's eternal City will come to watch with them in that hour before Mr. and Mrs. Whitfield King, of and more beautiful world beyond.

CARD OF THANKS.

We want to thank the good people of Grenada who so readily came to our assistance when our home burned, and also do we thank the fire department for their quick response and the good work rendered. We appreciate very much every deed and act of kindness shown us.—Mrs. M. L. House and Leigh House.

Mr. Sidney Perry and Miss Cora Schmitz, both of Grenada County, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony Tuesday of this week. Magistrate Dave Owens officiated. Their many friends wish them much success and happiness.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Foot Ball. The Float. Phelan Gift.

Last Fridty on the school grounds Grenada High met Greenwood High. The Greenwood boys were "whoppers." and excellent players, but our boys fought game from the first kick-off to the final play. They never wavered because they saw Greenwood was gaining, but threw themselves into the game with a spirit that caused a yell of admiration from the side lines. If you missed the game, you missed something you should have seen—a well fought and clean game.

High School Wins Prize.

The float of the High school department won first prize in its class in the parade Monday. The float decorated in the school colors, garnet and white, and further decorated by the score or more of happy boys and girls, was much admired. As the parade progressed from the square to the fair grounds, the boys and girls yelled and sang their high school yells and songs.

Mrs. Ida Phelan Honored.

In chapel Wednesday morning the work of a very lovable and charming woman, who has always had the interest of Grenada's childhood at heart was duly praised and materially shown appreciation. It is needless here to cite the work, in our behalf, of Mrs. Phelan, for everyone knows that our foot ball and base ball grounds, "The Phelan Field," is ours today on account of the untiring efforts of this dear woman. After a most appropriate scripture selection, "And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant," Mr. Rundle spoke of the unselfish labor of Mrs. Phelan, illustrating his talk by using the story of the poem "Abou Ben Adhem," write me as one who loves his fellowman. Then he presented to Mrs. Phelan a beautiful loving cup, bearing the inscription: "Presented to Mrs. Ida Phelan, our play ground friend, by the Grenada High School, in loving appreciation."

Mrs. Salmon in a few fitting words acknowledged the presentation. Mr. Lawrence then spoke of Mrs. Phelan's interest in the town and school after which she herself thanked us for the thoughts of her and for the cup. Miss Lorah Dill sang "Mother Machree," a song which expresses our true feeling for Mrs. Phelan.

Other guests were Mrs. Brown and Mr. Sharp, relatives of the honoree, and Mesdames Gerard, Mitchell, Cowles, Horton and Hicks.—Reporter.

RECEPTION AT OAKLAND.

OAKLAND, Miss., Oct. 22.—Mrs. B. K. Burt and daughter, Miss Marjorie, entertained their friends at a reception in honor of Mr. Clarence S. Burt and his bride Saturday afternoon. Upon entering the living room the guests were received by Mrs. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Burt, Mrs. W. A. McLeod, of Grenada, Miss., Miss Nell Hines, of Henning, Tenn., and Miss Willallah Moore. During the afternoon music was given by Mrs. Forney Black Ladd, Mrs. T. C. Bradford and Miss Willallah Moore. Refreshments were served in the dining room by Mesdames H. T. Ladd, P. S. Bailey and B. C. Moore. A diminutive bride and groom in a bower of white and gold presided over the table. After a few days spent with their mother, Mrs. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Burt have returned to their home in Grenada.

MISS ERMA ROOK DIES IN MEMPHIS.

Miss Erma L. Rook, second child of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rook of the Gore Springs community, died at a Memphis sanitarium last Sunday morning at a little past 6 o'clock and her remains were brought back home Monday and laid to rest in the Gore Springs burying ground Tuesday, after funeral services conducted by Rev. Mr. Wood, of the Methodist church.

Miss Rook was 26 years of age. About six years ago she decided that she could render the world the best service by taking training as a nurse, and when she graduated she at once went to work in a Memphis hospital. The task she undertook was an unselfish one, but one that gets very close to the hearts of those who suffer. It takes a spirit of sacrifice in a woman to undertake it.

She was a good and dutiful child. She was a sweet natured and exceptionally fine young woman. Her death was caused from tuberculosis. Some years ago she had united with the Methodist church and died believing in the riches of the risen Lord. She stated she was prepared for the end.

Besides her father and mother, she is survived by two sisters and one brother to whom The Sentinel tenders sincere sympathy.

YALOBUSHA DRAINAGE COMMITTEE TO MEET

There has been called a meeting of the committee named more than a month ago to confer with interested landholders in regard to the organization of the Yalobusha drainage district. The meeting is for Monday, October 30, at Greenwood. It is understood that Mr. A. L. Dabney, a civil engineer of Memphis, will be before the committee to give that body the benefit of his views as the proposed district. It seems that Mr. Dabney made a casual survey of the Yalobusha river some few years ago.

A WAR RECORD

One of the main things in every war is to keep every man in the best of physical condition. This can only be done by prevention if possible and immediate cure if disease is contracted.

A large per cent of the soldiers, while "Over Seas," contracted that well known skin malady "Itch." One of them has the following to say about a famous itch remedy. "I want you to know just what I think of Spivas one day itch remedy," writes Mr. Shelby Woodward, of Louisville, Miss. "I had Itch once and I had tried about ten different medicines, which did no good. One day I heard about this Spivas one day remedy. I got me a box and used it according to directions and was well within a doy or two, all the bumps were gone within a week."

While I was in the army several of my friends got this disease and I wrote for a box so they could try try it and it was such a success that I re-ordered several times and it never failed in a single case. This remedy is a sure shot and never fails."

Spiva's One Night Itch Remedy is sold by druggists, "One night is right." We recommend it. We ought to know, we bake it.—Anona Company, Jacksonville, Tenn deep-sided hogs. Machinery and automobiles filled in some of the nooks and corners. And the colored folks have a little fair of their own in the department that has been allotted to them. There is a very fine spirit of understanding and co-operation between the white and the colored folks around Grenada and the latter are enjoying most liberal concessions and are helping to make the Grenada exposition the best ever.

The start was as propitious as could have been wished. It was at 10 o'clock that morning and it took the form of a down-town parade of floats and automobiles loaded with North Mississippi. It was noon before the pageant ended. Upwards of 50 beautifully decorated floats to say nothing of the cars , were in line.

In the trades displays, the Mississippi School Supply Company, of Jackson, won first honors. Second prize went to Mr. E. J. Weyneth. The Grenada Trust and Banking Company won third, with a truck decorated as a lake upon which was a huge artificial swan driven by a mite of a "fairy," a beautiful little girl.

In the floral division Nep Smith took first prize with a mimic 'possum hunt secene. He had erected a persimmon tree on a truck, placed a live 'possum in its top-most branches and stationed a pack of hounds, a hunter and a heavily armed "Hambone" at the base. The float attracted lots of attention. Grenada College was second, its float being a huge truck loaded with girl students decorated in black and gold, the college colors. The Woman's Club won third with a tremendous basket filled with children, each wearing collars that made them look like flowers, such as daisies and black-eyed Susans.

The pageant gave evidence of zeal and enthusiasm which marks the annual festivities.

Not only did all the schools of Grenada close for the day but all the schools in Grenada County and all the adjoining counties suspended activities so that the children could get to the fair.

On top of this recognition of the worth of the Grenada exposition to the children, they got free tickets Every child, both black and white, had a pass to take him or her thru the gates. It didn't cost them a penny, except what they spent for balloons, candy, cracker-jack, red apples and such. They were not restrained. It was the kiddies day. there were plenty of mothers and dads and bevies of teachers about but they came with the youngsters, not the youngsters with them.

The counties represented included Tallahatchie, Lafayette, Panola, Marshall, Attalla, Grenada, Sunflower, Quitman, Tunica, Montgomery, Carroll, Yalobusha, Winston, Choctaw and Webster. Most of them have individual county exhibits as well as special displays in the home demonstration section, one of the very big section in the agricultural building in which women of North Mississippi are interested. It is a well rounded out showing fully on an equal footing with the best to be seen at the Memphis fair.

In the remainder of the departments and sections, one finds an abundance of evidences that the men, women and children of North Mississippi are proud of their accomplishments and proud of being able to show it during the great week at Grenada.

The Choctaw County Exhibit that is placed in the Agricultural Building carries some splendid varieties of farm crops, club boys exhibits, women and club girls exhibits, and along with all of this the local Chotaw County Farm Bureau activities are exhibited showing the different things that the Farm Bureau stands for. The Farm Bureau is an organization in Choctaw County that is looking forward for the improvement and development of their respective county in the many different lines of work. An attractive arranged buggy wheel is placed in the center as the centeral Farm Bureau organization of the county along with the photo showing the County Farm Bureau Exchange Building and the County agent and Home Dem. Agent offices. The spokes of the wheel are labeled corresponding to the different activities of the organiation. The farm organization feature the Choctaw County booth is not excelled by any of the other counties exhibiting at the Grenada Fair and should do a great deal in educating the people of this ection of Mississippi as to the purpose and the lines of work that a Farm Bureau should function in the many counties of the state.

Another pleasing feature of the fair is the Ed C. Nutt Comedy shows which has been playing to capacity houses each night. The shows have been exceptionally good and the personnel of the Nutt organization is made up of thorough ladies and gentlemen.

The exhibit by the State Health Department, immediately in charge of Mrs. C. C. Penn, was in keeping with the excellent service which that department is rendering the people of the State. "Health is wealth," and the physicians who have been directing the health work of the State for years fully realize this and have been laboring industriously to grow such boys and girls as will ake Mississippi a still greater star in the galaxy of States.

The State Plant Board came here with the same exhibit that it had at the State Fair at Jackson. It is full and complete and shows somebody is industrious about what that board is expected to do. State Commissioner of Agriculture, P. P. Garner, was at the Fair Wednesday and was highly complimentry of the exhibits. Indeed he said the Fair "is a big thing, one that reflects creditably upon the State."

The exhibit by the colored people was especially good. It contained everything from peanut, turnips and potatoes up to corn and cotton in the way of agriculture. It had a great deal of stuff that shows that the colored girls and women are somewhat experts in the use of the needle and in the execution of the those things which are so important in the domestic economy. The work from the different colored schools showed up creditably. The colored people are to be congratulated. They deserve the encouragement of all good white people.

The Sentinel would like to mention in detail the different floats, but time and space forbid, however, it cannot refrain from saying that the one in charge of Mr. Cowen which sought to emphasize the importance of watching railroad crossings, was particularly good and taught a good lesson. Too many people are being killed by the careless driving of cars onto rail road tracks. Mr. Cowan is in charge of an industry for the railroad, in Grenada, which is building some fine car trucks.

The polo games were the biggest drawing card for the Fair. People came from hundreds of miles across the country to see the games. The Polo teams were crack teams. A number have more than a national fame. To Mr. Borden is due credit for placing this important feature to the Fair. It is very probable that these teams will all winter in Grenada. Good. And just here The Sentinel takes occasion to express the appreciation of Grenada and of this entire section for the great interest Mr. Borden has taken in the Fair and what his great farm means to Mississippi. Grenada is proud of the farm. Grenada feels that Mr. Borden is her very own. It was readily observed during the Polo playing, when Mr. Borden was among the players, where the sympathies of Grenada and the throngs at the Fair were. They clapped and cheered when Mr. Borden's team won and when he made a good play.

The ladies department can not be excelled for beauty and for perfection. It was full of the work of delicate hands from every part of the Fair district. And in looking over this department, one could not help but feel that there was no danger of Mississippi forgetting the nicer and better things which are indispensible to a happy home and to the perfection of home surroundings. All honor to the women.

The second day of the North Mississippi Fair at Grenada was a thrilling one from every viewpoint. The crowd exceeded that of Monday. It seemed that nearly every foot of ground within the gates was covered with moving, interested human beings bent on seeing what was to be seen. Every department was inspected and investigated not with the eye of the curious, but by those who seemed to want to learn what his neighbors were doing with the view of doing better himself. And then, too, there were those who asked questions in every department because they were really surprised that such wonderful products of the farm where so many appear to think, somecame from right here in Mississippi times, farming is worse than an uphill undertaking.

The visitors were not alone from adjoining counties, but they were here from various points in the great delta and many from outside of the State. Old citizens of Grenada County, many who knew conditions here more than a third of a century ago, were here to witness what is being done in this day when it is evident that almost everything is in a sort of transitory period. These old citizens who were back home again were more than surprised at what they saw in the way of registered cattle and hogs and poultry. While they did not utter it yet it was evident that they were ready to exclaim, "the section we thought at its rows end forty years ago is at the dawning of a new day." This is literally true. The little farmer of Mississippi is thinking more in terms of common sense and applied agricultural methods, which have brought a competency to others, than ever before. The larger farmer of Mississippi is beginning to realize that if he is to succeed with his vast acres and "niggers," that the raising of cotton must go hand-in-hand with the raising of feedstuff, some hogs and cows. Truly may it be said that the people of the land are more teachable than for years.

Hence, it is that everybody connected with "putting over" the Fair felt more than gratified at what was seen and what was done. The exhibits from many counties were not in order Monday but by persistent work and laboring into a late hour Monday night, everything was pick and span for Tuesday and was ready to say "Howay" to all who came

One of the very pleasing features of Tuesday afternoon was the raising of the U. S. flag on the fair grounds. The flag pole was donated by the Phoenix Chair factory through its clever and public spirited manager, Mr. Nohl, while Mr. Borden donated the flag.

GAINS 20 POUNDS FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

"I have gained twenty pounds by taking Tanlac and feel like an entirely different person," declared Mrs. J. B. Bigger, highly esteemed resident of Lowell, N. C., R. F. D. No. 1.

"When I began taking Tanlac," she said, "I was so nervous and rundown I could hardly do a thing My stomach was in wretched condition and everything I ate disagreed with me. Gas on my stomach gave me no end of trouble, and I often had headaches and dizzy spells so bad I would have to stop whatever I was doing and sit down or lie down. My sleep was so badly broken I would get up morning as worn out as when I went to bed, and it seemed I simply could not get any relief.

"But now I never feel a trace of my old troubles, for Tanlac has made an end of them. I can eat anything I want without having indigestion afterwards. My nerves are steady. I sleep soundly and feel full of energy all the time. Several of my friends have taken Tanlac, too, and we think it is simply grand."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Adv.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI

At a regular session of the legislature of the State of Mississippi, held in January, February, March and April, 1922, two concurrent resolutions were adopted submitting to the qualified electors of the state for ratification or rejection at an election to be held on Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1922, being the 7th day of November, 1922, which amendments are in words and figures following, towit:

A Concurrent Resolution to amend Section 135 of the Constitution of the State of Mississippi so as to abolish the office of county treasurer.

SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the legislature of the State of Mississippi (2-3 of the members of each House concuring therein) that Section No. 135 of the constitution of the State of Mississippi be and the same is hereby amended as follows:

"SECTION 135. There shall be a sheriff, coroner, assessor, and surveyor for each county to be selected as elsewhere provided herein who shall hold their office for four years. The sheriff shall be ineligible to immediately succeed himself in office. The duties heretofore imposed on the county treasurer shall be discharged by some person or persons selected as required by law."

SECTION 2. That this amendment to the constitution be submitted to the qualified electors by the state for ratification or rejection at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1922, in accordance with Section 273 of the Constitution of Missssippi.

Passed the Senate January 27, 1922; January 30, 1922; February 1, 1922.

Passed the House of Representatives, March 22, 1922; March 23, 1922 ;March 24, 1922.

A Concurrent Resolution proposing an amendment to Section 170 of the State Constitution, prescribing the jurisdiction of boards of supervisors over roads, ferries and bridges.

Resolved by the legislature of the State of Mississippi, two-thirds of each House agreeing thereto, that the following amendment to the state constitution be submitted to the qualified electors of the state for ratification or rejection at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1922, viz:

Amend Section 170 of the state constitution so as to read as follows:

Each county shall be divided into five districts, a resident freeholder of each district shall be selected, in the manner prescribed by law, and the five so chosen shall constitute the board of supervisors of the county, a majority of whom may transact business. The board of supervisors shall have full jurisdiction over roads, ferries and bridges, to be exercised in accordance with such regulations as the legislature may prescribe and perform such other duties as may be required by law; provided, however, that the legislature may have the power to designate certain highways as "state highways" and place such highways under the control and supervision of the state highway commission, for construction and maintenance.

The clerk of the chancery court shall be the clerk of the board of supervisors.

Passed the House of Representatives, February 1, 1922; February 2, 1922; February 3, 1922

Passed the Senate, February 21, 1922; February 22, 1922; February 28, 1922.

And the same is published and will be submitted as required by Section 273 of the State Constitution.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Mississippi, this 10th day of October, 1922.

JOSEPH W. POWER,
232p Secretary of State.

MOONEY PRAISES THINGS AT GRENADA AND FAIR

Commercial Appeal Editor Writes Glowingly of Visit to Fair and Tells What the Great Show Means to this Section.

The following editorial from the pen of Mr. C. P. J. Mooney, editor of the Commercial Appeal, appeared in the Commercial Appeal Thursday. Mr. Mooney made a visit to the Fair Tuesday. The caption of the editorial was, "Big Fair and Big Men."

Grenada, Miss., is 100 miles from Memphis. Grenada is a mighty big small town. There are some strong men and women in Grenada County.

The head bank of a system of banks throughout North Mississippi is at Grenada. The head of these institutions is Mr. J. T. Thomas. The influence of Mr. Thomas through these banks has shot all over the midnorth of the Mississippi territory.

The gospel of better farming, better schools and better roads has been preached in the Grenada territory and in the territory of the Thomas banks for several years. The seed has taken root and a better order of farming is in vogue.

We saw the Grenada County Fair Tuesday. The following other counties had exhibits: Tallhatchie, Attala, Sunflower, Calhoun, Yalobusha, Winston, Choctaw, Warren and Montgomery. We were amazed at the variety of the excellence of the exhibits. The credit is largely due to county agents, state and United agents working in conjunction with the A. and M. College.

There were exhibits in needle work, basketry, bacon curing, preserving and a thousand and one other things that are found in well regulated farming communities.

We saw dresses and children's clothes made out of flour sacks. We saw nice rugs and we saw hats that might have been made in Rue de La Paix.

The exhibit of fine stock and poultry was most creditable.

We saw a polo match at the Grenada Fair. It was as good as some we saw at Meadowbrook some years ago and faster than one we saw in England 20 years ago.

Polo is an expensive sport, but it is as thrilling as tiger hunting,

One of the big assets of Grenada County and North Mississippi is Mr. John Borden, who has built up and is operating a great farm of several thousand acres just south of Grenada. Mr. Borden has a happy combination of money and sense. He also seems to have a thought of making life worth while for everybody. He has a big vision and a big mind and the people of Mississippi should rejoice that such a man as Mr. Borden has come among them.

The Ransom boys are building a whaling big sawmill in the suburbs of Grenada. They will get out lumber under the best modern conditions.

Grenada is a beautiful little town. There are half a dozen residences there that some of our architects who expect to do their work in the south should inspect. They would learn that our ancestors knew more about constructing a cool house for the summer and a comfortable house for the year round than we do. They would also learn that columns worked into any building scheme along with verandas make for beauty and for comfort.

A representative of The Commercial Appeal saw many things at the Grenada Fair worth a day's journey.

HATTIESBURG LAWYER AGAINST MORTMAIN AMENDMENT.

Your inquiry relative to my view on the proposed abolition of mortmain constitutional provision (sections 269 and 270, constitution of 1890) has been received. I was unaware of the fact that this question would be submitted to the electorate in November until your communication was received.

I may say in the beginning that I am not only opposed to the abrogation of the provision in question, but rather think section 270 should be amended so as to preclude bequests of personalty.

It is believed that the experience of every nation, where like conditions prevail, justifies the assertion that repressive legislation of the character now in force in this state, is highly desirable if not essential. Soon after Christianity received national recognition as a religion it became necessary to restrain the rapacity of the ecclesiastes.

"Charities had their origin in the great command to love thy neigbor as thyself, but when the Emperor Constantine (the founder of the Christian religion) permitted his subjects to bequeath their property to the church it was soon abused; so much so, that afterward, when it became too common to give land to religious uses, consistently with the free circulation of property, the supreme authority of every nation in Europe, where Christianity prevailed, found it necessary to limit such devises by statute of Mortmain." (Perrin vs. Carey, 24 How, U. S. 465, 16 Led., 701.)

While England was yet in a semi-barbarous state the churches had already instituted the practice of acquiring lands and tenements for religious purposes. In Bracton's (1245 1268) time alienations were beginning to cause murmurs:

Pollock and Maitland's History of English Law, 334.

Before the time of Edward I the legislation of the kingdom was enacted by the king and barons in Perliament assembled, the people having no elective representation as in the House of Commons of today. Several statutes were enacted to prevent such abuses. Edward 1 1272-1307) whom Blackstone says (Book 4, 2672, Jones Ed.) "hath justly been styled over English Justinian" effectively closed the great gulf in which all landed property in the kingdom was in danger of being swallowed by his reiterated statute of mortmain.

Among the many reforms instituted in this reign was that of permitting the people to elect representatives to the lower house of the Parliament the House of Commons. No doubt a part, at least, of that beneficent legislation originated in that house. However, as statutes were passed from time to time to extirpate the evil, the ingenuity and cupidity of the beneficiaries found means to evade them. As time passed the statues became more comprehensive and more drastic, especially those of 43 Ellis. Ch. 4 (1601) and 9 Geo. 11 (1136) Cr. 36.

Coming now to our own country, we find that these statutes were not a part of the common law and had no force outside of England. While the general principles of the common law obtained in the colonies and dependencies, the statutes of mortmain were always held to be local in character, confined to England, except Pennsylvania, where they prevailed.

The question was expressly pretermitted in this state (1846) as not being necessary to the decision of the case. Wade vs. Am. Colonization Society, 7 S. & M., 663.

In 1857 there was an express legislative recognition of the fact that such statutes were not in force here as a rule of the common law. Art. 55 and 56, Sec. 10, Ch. 35, p. 302 and 305, Code of 1857.

These same statutes here embraced in the next codification of the laws of the state:

Sec. 2440 and 2441 p. 538, Code of 1871. Sec. 269 and 270 constitution of 1890, Code of 1906, Secs. 5090 and 5091, are in ipsissimis verbis with the sections in the codes of 1857 and 1871. These statutes were not embraced in the Code of 1880, but whether the failure to include them was designedly done or was casus omissus is not known. They had been a part of the statutes of the state before they were omitted from the next revision. From 1880 to 1890 we had no legislation on the subject In 1890 the constitutional convention the selected wisdom and worth of the state, fresh from the people, assembled to promulgate a new constitution. In that convention were many lawyers of deep learning and great ability, the peers of any in the state or any other state.

It appeared to them that the subject under consideration was of such importance that mortmain provisions in the same language as the former legislative enactments should become a part of the organic law. There they have remained for more than 30 years without any special objections being raised, so far as known. The journal of the convention is not accessible, so it is not known whether or not any objecton was registered to incorporating the provision in the constitution. Suffice it to say that lawyers of such consummate ability as Alcorn, Blair, Campbell, Carter, Chrisman, Cutrer, Dabney, Denny, Dillard, Fewell, Ford, George Harris, Henry, Judson, Jones, Lee, Magruder, McCurg, Mayes, McDonald, Muldrow, Packwood, Sexton, Simrall, Murray, Smith, Sykes, Thompson, Witherspoon and Yerger deemed it fit to place the provisions in question in the constitution is almost an indubitable reason why they should remain there. If they were aimed after worked a leadership on any part clear sect. religion or creed while favoring another they should be repealed; but they operate on all alike.

Moreover there is nothing to prevent one charitably inclined from relieving himself of his property during his lifetime and devoting the same to religious purposes.

The supreme court of the state in an opnion rendered shortly after the adoption of our present constitution speaking through one of the ablest jurists (Judge Cooper) the state ever had, makes a pertinent observation along this line: "One may yet sell all that he hath and give to the poor, but he may not keep his grip on his estate until death relaxes his grasp and then at the expense of his wife or child devote it to religious uses." Blackburn vs. Tucker, 72, M., 735, 17 So. 137.

Could anything be added to the above statement; is it necessary to advance any other reason to demonstate the wisdom of letting that part of the constitution remain intact? In conclusion it might be remarked that the constitution of 1889 was not submitted to a referendum vote for ratification or rejection: the delegates had been elected by the people and besides there were obvious reasons of a political nature, why it was not done.

The experience of ages concur in the belief that in all countries where the Christian religion prevails restraning or prohibiting legislation, such as we have, is vitally necessary to the well being of society. Respectfully, C. G. MAYSON.

Hattesburg, Miss., Oct. 6, 1922.

SINS OF OMISSION.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache,
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts tonight.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion,
That tarries until too late.
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache,
At the setting of the sun.

MISSISSIPPI SCHOOL SUPPLY CO. CARRIES OFF FIRST HONORS

Winner of Prize for Best Industrial Float In Parade First Day Of North Mississippi Fair. A great Company that is Doing Big Things in the State.

It gave quite a large number of Grenada citizens extreme pleasure when the announcement was made at the opening day of the Fair, Monday, that the Mississippi School Supply Company, of Jackson, had been awarded the first prize by the judges for the best and most perfectly arranged float, a picture of which appears on this page.

Grenada's gratification is due very largely to the personal popularity of the manager, A. B. Campbell, one of Mississippi's best citizens and most astute young business men, and to C. C. White, the vice president, who is ever ready to do a good turn and who can see just about as far into a business proposition as some of the trained financiers of the east. With these two gentlemen should also be mentioned J. T. Thomas, president of the company, whose name is a rock to any enterprise, and to Dr. J. R. Countiss, and Rev. R. A. Tucker, both of whom are so thoroughly entrenched in the confidence and the esteem of the people of Grenada that everybody is ready to help put over almost any thing in which they are interested.

The Mississippi School Supply Co. was born in the minds of Boyd Campbell and C. C. White in Grenada, and it is highly creditable to these gentlemen that they saw the need of such an enterprise in Mississippi. They reasoned that Mississippi talent had paid tribute for these years to business concerns outside of the State, and they could see no reason why a business could not be organized to handle school supplies in Mississippi as well as in Memphis, Chicago or some other city outside of the State. The success of the Mississippi School Supply Co. shows that Messrs. Campbell and White reasoned wisely.

The Mississippi School Supply Company has met every competitor in that line from every corner of the country, and in more than seventy five per cent of the cases, has beaten them in competitive prices. The Company has proceeded upon the idea of live and let live. The organizers and leading stockholders feel more than an ordinary interest in the success of the schools of the State. and in endeavoring to sell school authorities, they have kept in mind at all times the betterment of the schools. The spirit of co-operativion towards making of the schools of Mississippi what they should be has not been overlooked by Messrs. Campbell and White at any time. What the company has accomplished is almost a marvel in business, and The Sentinel but records what is true from one end of the State to the other when it says that Mississippi never had a business concern of the age of the Mississippi School Supply Company which had so many zealous, interested friends as this one.

It has shown itself worthy of friends and made them. It has shown itself worthy of business and got it. It is destined to develop into one of the biggest school supply concerns of the South.

Just here again is shown the power of personality. Mr. A. B. Campbell and Mr. C. C. White are recognized by those who know them most intimately as clean, high class, stalwart young men who are striving to uphold that which is best and who have set their sails to make their way in the world by intelligent effort and by persistent and continuous work.

Grenada takes a keen interest in the Mississippi School Supply Co. not only because of her interest in its organizers, but because it was launched here and the community loves to see great things come of what is started in Grenada.

The Sentinel salutes the Mississippi School Supply Co. It is today an enterprise that the whole state feels almost that pride in that Grenada does.

PATTERSON WRITES ON CERTAINTY OF ANOTHER LIFE AFTER THIS.

There was so much of that which ought to arouse the best in men and in women in Ex-Gov. Patterson's article which appeared in the Commercial Appeal of last Sunday that it is reproduced here in the hope that it may lead somebody to think of the things of God and of the certainty that man "shall live again" after he finishes his journey in this world.

Gov. Patterson took as a theme, the Bible statement, "If a man die, shall he live again?" Here is what the distinguished Tennesseean said:

On this October Sunday—in the sad calm season when nature is drowsing and almost ready to fall into her winter sleep—weary from her labors throughout the warm days and nights which have gone—let us all once more learn the old lesson and have the solemn thought that all things earthly pass away—that only God is eternal—that time and space—the earth, sea and sky, are his handiwork.

Another day will come. A day or a night it may be—when the old earth who had worked so hard to feed and clothe her children and deserved to rest—will hear a low, far call faintly stir out of her slumber and arise to begin her toil all over again for those who sprang from her—who need her—and who will everyone return to her when the shadows of evening fall.

A mystery will then occur—a mystery so familiar that it never excites us—yet hidden from every human thought—the mystery of resurrection—the moving of the Father's fingers—the evidence of His care—the sign of His promise.

Then will the blood begin to flow again in the veins of the trees—the grass spring up green from seeming desolation—the buds will form and swell and burst and give forth their myriad progency—birds will choose their mates and build their nests in deep friendly shelters—and a dull root will creep and crawl and search in the dark amid the dirt and muck and slime—to gather materials to paint the heart of a rose.

If a man die, shall he live again? Yes. The only thing that makes you doubt is your fear.

The most certain thing in all the uncertainties and mysteries of life is immortality.

If a grain of corn can live again—why not you?

If the earth you tread upon can transform death to living glories—why can't you be born again in a happier and higher state?

If from corruption—incorruption springs, as we know and see all about us—why should you fear the worms and the grave?

There is such a thing as doing your best—and trusting God for the future—for there is no other trust—no other comfort—no other hope.

We believe in God more than we think we do—but we do not believe enough in ourselves.

"A fool hath said in his heart there is no God"—but even the fool believes there is when face to face with death.

I have never reached the point where I can conceive of eternal punishment following resurrection—and that no longer concerns me—but I do know we suffer and pay the penalties of our misdeeds on earth—just as the crooked tree suffers—or the branch blown off by the storm.

The upright man, like the upright tree, has growth and joy—the crooked man, like the crooked tree, misses the chance and happiness of life.

Beyond the night and the grave the curtain will be lifted—and we will then see and know what was never intended for us to see and know on our pilgrimage here.

Let us cast out fear—why fear the God who made us? Let us substitute love—love for the Creator—love for the beautiful and the good—love for our fellow-man—and trust in Him.

In the beginning God said: "Let there be light." At the end of all things God will say: "Let there be light"—then we shall know what are mysteries now and be ashamed of our doubts and fears—as we stand raised from corruption to incorruption—mortals clothed with immortality.

MAY BE YOU GOT THE WRONG BABY

The Commercial Appeal of last Sunday had such a timely and common sense editorial on "Mixing the Babies," that the Sentinel reproduces it and comends it to the horse sense mother.

"During recent years there has been a great deal of needless confusion over the parentage of babies born in hospitals.

"Readers of The Commercial Appeal are familiar with the latest tangle, wherein the waiting father had been told by the nurse that the new arrival was a boy, but when the baby, after going through the several degrees given by the specialists in a separate chamber, was returned to its mother's couch it was a girl.

"The father refused to own it. The nurse said that in her haste to be the bearer of glad tidings of great joy she had misinformed the sire when she told him it was a boy. Nevertheless, it was necessary for the court to intervene in order to convince the doubting father and by judicial decree compel him to take it into his home.

"Now comes an eastern institution with the proposal to footprint and finger print both mother and babe to prevent such misadventures or disputes. Of course no mother in a hospital wants to take a chance in a raffle or grab-bag scheme and thereby probably draw an infant not of her own flesh and blood.

"The finger printing operation smacks somewhat of police methods but even at that is more merciful than the frontier custom of branding cattle on the ranges. It might do to fasten metal tags about the legs of the infant, after the manner of labelling pedigreed fowls at a poultry show, but even then there is the chance that baby and tag might become separated and a young Van Deventer be shuffled in the deck and in t the end be crated and carted into th home of lesser lights in the social firmament.

"But what's the use of all this confusion, anyway? Why the hospital for expectant mothers under ordinary conditions? It's only a silly modern custom, a departure from the good old custom of other days, that serves at all times to separate the head of the house from a goodly portion of his money and sometimes to separate the mother from her babe.

"Twenty years ago the stork didn't makes so much of a 'howdydo' when he called. He invited the old family doctor and perhaps a 'black mammy' or a woman friend of the family to be present at the reception. Our fathers and our mothers and that splendid type of professional man who rode horseback, with saddlebags under his Prince Albert coat, seemed to have the utmost confidence in nature. And the advent of a brand-new member to the human family was regarded as the most natural thing in the world.

'N'oboby thought of a hospital. Suggestion of such a thing probably would have been resented. Why grandmother could take you into a room in her home and point out the bed on which you were born. That piece of furniture was looked upon as a family relic. Had you first opened your eyes inside the walls of an institution set aside for the sick, a month later nobody could have identified the cot on which your head was first laid.

"And the men and women of today who were born in the big houses and the little houses a quarter of half a century ago are as large of statute and big of brain as the babe who are to be finger printed and tagged will ever be.

"Of course the specialists will tell you that only doctors and graduate nurses know how to handle young mothers and infants. They even tell you today that it will make the baby foolish to rock it in a cradle. Of course. There were Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln and Davis and Lee and Jackson—not one of them born in a hospital and probably all of them rocked in cradles. The hall of fame is crowded with busts and portraits of "foolish" men who were born outside hospitals and rocked to sleep in cradles.

"But the old order has passed. Today the expectant mother must be placed in an automoble and removed from the refining influence of the home to the hospital. There must be an obstetric specialist, a nurse with a diploma, a specialist in infant diseases, a dietetic specialist, perhaps a maid of all work and a few others—all at so much per. And when the bill is totalled it generally amounts to enough to aid the specialists in piling up an income tax and pressing the nose of the father to the stone on which axes are whetted.

"About the only advantage in all this that we can see is that, aside from unnecessary making the mother faint-hearted, there is a chance of drawing an infant from another stable.

"We cheerfully testify to the progress of surgery and medcine and the necessity of hospitals for hospitals cases, but we fail to recognize the practicability of hospitals and all these specialists in cases of childbirth.

"And we have never heard of mixed babies in private homes."

Meat And Vegetable Combination Canned By Club Girls.

In order to use material which grow in their own vicinity, club women and girls in the South have been encouraged to develop unusual packs of meat and vegetable or fish and vegetable combinations, in which they can incorporate home-grown garden products according to standard recipes available from the United States Department of Agriculture. Particular attention has been given to the development of dishes characteristic of certain districts or States and popular locally, which would at the same time permit the use of surplus meats and vegetables. By using recipes calling for veal or in which veal could take the place of other meats, surplus dairy calves, too expensive to feed, could be profitably disposed of. The same has been the case with cull chickens and surplus garden vegetables. Some of the canned "one piece meals" taught to the club girls by extension agents are "Dixie Burgoo," originating in Kentucky; "Pine Bark Fish Stew" from South Carolina; "Brunswick Stew" coming from Virginia; chicken, crab and shrimp "gumbos" of Louisiana, also "shrimp jambalaya" and several combinations of vegetables with chicken, used in Oklahoma. They are put up wherever the necessary ingredients can be obtained locally. In many cases the club girls must maintain gardens to grow the vegetables they expect to can.

The home demonstration club of Pinellas County, Florida, recently reported that in one day's "canning bee" the club members had prepared 12 different fish products, not one of which competed with the ordinary cannery output. A South Carolina woman reported that during nine months following the first meat canning demonstration in her district she had put up 1,600 cans of meat and vegetable combinations and had orders for 1000 more.
